Moving Beyond The Basics in a Post-Perimeter World

IT leaders need the latest advances in technology to effectively detect and thwart ransomware and security breaches. Global attacks like WannaCry and Petya succeed not only because of outdated systems, but also due to security tools using known signatures. New ransomware strains evolve on a daily basis, each more sophisticated than the last. You can't afford to leave your network vulnerable once malware makes it inside. Join us to explore how to add a critical layer of defense to detect threats in real time and to get valuable insight into:

- Key Trends – How NPM Plays a Critical Role In Responding to Security Breaches
- Continued emergence of the 'Human Vector'
- Security as a Strategy
- Design an incident response plan
- Why look to network analytics

January 24, 2018 Speaker
Mark Royal, Senior Solution's Architect, Duo Security

Mark is a Senior Solution's Architect with 16 years of experience in the Security, Identity, and Access Management. Professional experience includes roles in support, consulting, architecture, and sales. Have worked closely with customers in Federal Government, State and Local Government, Healthcare, Finance, Manufacturing, Ecommerce, and more.

Moving Beyond The Basics in a Post-Perimeter World

Discussion on the evolution of the network, the challenges this evolution poses, and the best practices for addressing these challenges in what Duo is calling the post-perimeter world. How Google's BeyondCorp is introducing the idea of ZeroTrust Networks and the advantages of securing access to applications through a user and device-centric authentication and authorization workflow.
